Montreat Women's Conference

Horizon Gazing: Hope in the Here and Now, August 14-16, 2026

Keynote Speaker: Kristin Du Mez, author of the New York Times bestseller Jesus and John Wayne, is a writer, speaker, and scholar who explores the intersection of religion, gender, and politics.

Join us in the quiet beauty of Montreat for “Horizon Gazing: Hope in the Here and Now.” Together, we’ll slow down, worship, find our footing, and look toward the horizon of faith with steadiness and authentic hope. As we gather, we’ll consider what it looks like to raise our gaze, find perspective, share our burdens and our hopes in the here and now. Designed for women at every stage of life, this retreat offers space to breathe, reflect, and be renewed—grounded in community and anchored in God’s faithful presence.

New Podcast for Worship Leaders from Presbyterian Association of Musicians

From Presbyterian News Service:

The podcast is designed for worship leaders, church musicians, pastors, choir directors, seminary students, music educators, creative artists serving in congregational settings, and anyone engaged in planning, leading or imagining worship. “We aim to reach those who love the church, care about the quality and integrity of worship and want to grow in their ability to lead God’s people with thoughtfulness, creativity and faithfulness,” PAM said.

“Sounding Board” began as a collaborative effort within PAM to “create a resource that meets worship leaders where they are — busy, curious, passionate and hungry for connection.”

Who are Commissioned Pastors?

Commissioned Pastors (Cps) are individuals who answer a call to delve deeper into their lay ministries to serve God and the church at a more profound level. They are called to a specific ministry for a particular time and place. Their use must be driven by mission needs, the greater good of a congregation, and the church universal, and always to the glory of God.

The PC(USA) constitutional foundation for Commissioned Ruling Elders (now Commissioned Pastors) is found in the Book of Order (BOO) G-2.1001 through G-2.1004.

Commissioned Pastors (CPs) must be Ruling Elders and as such carry with them all the responsibilities of a Ruling Elder, “persons of wisdom and maturity of faith, demonstrable skills in leadership and being compassionate in spirit...and together with the ministers of the Word and Sacrament, exercise leadership, government, spiritual discernment and discipline and have responsibilities for the life of a congregation as well as the whole church.”

Stay tuned for more on this important topic in future Peaks Postings, and share with individuals you feel may have an interest!

Are you, or maybe another Elder you know, seeking a greater opportunity to serve the church using your/their gifts such as teaching, pastoral care, or faith foundation? If so, click below to learn about becoming a CP (Commissioned Pastor) in the Presbytery of the Peaks.

Housing crisis film study

Join us for a church-wide film study on this excellent documentary about homelessness, the U.S. housing crisis, and its impacts on children. We will gather weekly online after having watched each week's segment of the film. We will hear from featured speakers and discuss issues of redlining, housing commodification, eviction, the impact of housing insecurity on children, and ways to take action in our own communities.

Advanced registration is required to receive the meeting links and instructions to view the film segments each week. After registering, you will receive a confirmation email with these instructions. To see a clip from the film, visit PCUSA.ORG/EVICTING.

The graphic features a yellow background with a collage of images related to housing and eviction, including a house, a door, a key, and a person. The text reads: "SAVE THE DATES", "Evicting the American Dream", "A Churchwide Film Study", "Mondays Feb. 2, 9, 16, 23 7:30-8:45 p.m. ET", and the Presbyterian Church (USA) logo.

What is Advocacy?

"That's what advocacy is really — you're trying to change the thing that causes the need to begin with" Rev. Rebekah LeMon

Perhaps, as we read the Matthew 25 scripture detailing "the least of these"

and addressing the needs of the poor, the hungry, and even the unhoused, we limit our view to consider this help as individual acts of mercy for those of whom we might readily see or come into contact. However, the Rev. Rebekah LeMon, Senior Pastor at Trinity Presbyterian Church in Atlanta GA, told Beth Waltemath of the Presbyterian News Service that “advocacy” extends individual acts of mercy to address root causes. LeMon says, “we’re doing it in these really beautiful and important ways for humans we know... let’s do it for humans we don’t know yet, and let’s change the system so our expression of fulfilling the command of Matthew 25 is not limited to one person at a time...”

LeMon identified a troubling disconnect in how Christians approach need. “So many people of faith would feel totally comfortable helping a person, right? We’ve read Matthew 25, we understand that people need — if they are hungry, we’re to feed them; if they are thirsty, we’re to give them drink; if they’re estranged, we’re to welcome them,” she said. “Somehow that feels comfortable if there’s a person in front of you and a material thing you can give them...”

However, LeMon explains, “But the systemic expression of that, which is let us change the system that is keeping people from having access to housing, or that is preserving food deserts, or that is alienating people from their home spaces, which are exactly the same things listed in Matthew 25, somehow the system level really scares people or makes them think they’re going to offend somebody.”

LeMon said. “That’s what advocacy is really — you’re trying to change the thing that causes the need to begin with.”

As we seek opportunities to BEE the Presbytery, perhaps we too can consider our call to public advocacy to make a difference in our communities and beyond!

For individuals and churches interested in local, state and national advocacy, the Office of Public Witness (OPW) has developed a resource.

OPW Resource

A Public Witness for Immigrant Justice

On Wednesday, February 25th, ecumenical and interfaith groups from across the country are gathering in Washington D.C. for Faithful Resistance: A Public Witness for Immigrant Justice. The goal of this event is a public witness grounded in worship, moral courage, and solidarity with our neighbors. There will be worship at Capitol Hill United Methodist Church, a peaceful procession to the U.S. Capitol, a public witness on the Capitol grounds, and Congressional visits.

Want to connect with others who will be making the trip? Please complete this form so that Blacksburg Presbyterian Church can help facilitate communication for those interested in carpooling, splitting the cost of lodging, etc.

Contact Rev. Emily Rhodes Hunter at pastoremy@blacksburgpres.org for more information.
